WE ALL KNOW THEM.

From Better Farming.
There are people who fail because they are afraid to make a beginning. Who are too honest to steal, but will borrow and never pay back. Who go to bed tired because they spend the day looking for an easy place.

Who can play a tune on one string, but it never makes anybody want to dance.

Who would like to reform the world, but have a front gate that won't stay shut.

Who find it hard to lead a Christian life, because they devote so little time to it.

Who cannot tell what they think about anything until they see what the papers have to say about it.

GENERAL E. M. LAW DIES IN FLORIDA

Bartow, Fla., Nov. 2.—Maj. Gen. E. M. Law, ranking surviving officer of the Army of the Confederate States of America, died here today after a week's illness.

Evander McIver Law, schoolmaster, soldier and editor, was born in Darlington, S. C., in 1836. He graduated from the South Carolina Military Academy in 1856 and began teaching at King's Mountain Mill school at York, S. C., the next year remaining there until he moved to Tuskegee, Ala., in 1860 to establish a military school.

On the secession of Florida in January, 1861, General Law abandoned his plans and led his company of Alabama volunteers to aid the Floridians assisting in the capture of Pensacola, and the forts at that place. He remained in Florida two months going into the Confederate army as lieutenant-colonel of the Fourth Alabama Regiment when the states organized. His first post was an assignment at Harper's Ferry, but he shortly returned to Virginia and was wounded at the first battle of Manassas. He attained the rank of colonel during the peninsula campaign and after the battle of Seven Pines, was elevated to the rank of senior colonel of the brigade, leading his command with signal gallantry through the seven days' battle from Gaines Mill to Malvern Hill. General Law commanded his brigade in 1862, going through the second battle of Manassas and the battles of Boonesboro and Antietam and emerging as a brigadier-general in October in time for the battle of Fredericksburg.

BRITISH BUY GERMAN TOYS

Teuton Product Easily Outsell English Goods.

Washington, 30 Oct. 0.—German-made goods are again arriving at Leeds, England, on a considerable scale, and dealers are stocking them for the Christmas season, according to Vice Consul Cipriani's cable to the Department of Commerce.

Toys, fancy goods, and cheap clocks form the principal German imports, German competition is being felt with particular severity in the toy line, as this industry came into being in England largely during the war, and had developed a good market in the absence of Continental competition. Many of the smaller British concerns are closing down, it is stated.

Average German prices are about 100 per cent. over pre-war figures, the German toymakers now selling under the British manufacturers. But whole sellers say that the retailers are demanding the most attractive goods, regardless of whence they come, and the German toys easily outsell the British.

NO APOLOGIES FOR EXPENSE OF WAR SAYS ROOSEVELT

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Replying to Republican charges of government waste and inefficiency during the war, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, declared in a series of speeches through West Chester county today that the Democratic party had no apologies to offer for heavy war expenditures.

Everybody connected with the running of the war, Republicans and Democrats, alike, stated Mr. Roosevelt, knows that we had outlined a program big enough to maintain an army of 4,000,000 men for an indefinite period of time. In order to do that we had to create new plants for shells, powder, nitrates and all the rest.

Everybody concerned with the program—Republican and Democrat officials, the general staff of the army and the general board of the navy—all were united in the need

PRESIDENT OF FRANCE HAS REAL BATH TUB

For the first time in the history of the Elysee Palace, the President of the Republic is able to bathe in a real bath tub. President Millerand insisted that the French White House keep pace with progress by installation of a comfortable porcelain tub, with hot and cold water, instead of the shallow metal tubs, wherein valets poured the water for the bath from antique pitchers.

The president has officially taken possession of his new home, and has visited every room with his family. He has selected the room used by former presidents as a library, and which overlooks the rose garden, as his personal office and has directed the decoration of the sombre walls, which will have gaily colored, costly tapestries.

It is being remarked that at last France has a president who is strong for family life. President Millerand has four children, each of whom will need one of the daily reception rooms for a bed room, for the Elysee, like most buildings of its time and type, was constructed with an eye to public functions and very little regard to the domestic requirements of the family.

of that program. Our purpose was to win the war and we proposed to do it if it took one year or ten.

No one in the year 1917 or even in the first half of 1918—not even Marshal Foch—could foresee that Germany would quit that year.

SILENT 10 YEARS; GIVEN FREEDOM; REFUSES TO TALK

Boston, Oct. 28.—Patrick J. "Corky" Hanley ended a twenty-five year sentence at the state penitentiary today against his will and maintained to the last a silence begun ten years ago. He had asked, in writing, that he be allowed to stay on for a few days more to finish some work, but his sentence having expired, Warden Shattuck put him out.

At the state house to which he was taken by the warden on his first automobile ride, he was asked if he was ready to talk. Hanley stood mute then reached out for a pencil and pad, and wrote, I can't.

He took a vow of silence ten years ago after a fellow convict had retold something he said, and although parole was offered him several times if he would voice a request for it, he refused.

Hanley was committed to prison as a habitual criminal from Lawrence in 1895 after he was found guilty of stealing $84 worth of shoes.

FIRE AT ALCOLU MAY HAVE BEEN INCENDIARY

Alcolu, Oct. 29.—Investigators endeavored today to determine whether incendiarism was connected with the origin of the fire that destroyed the lumber plant of D. W. Alderman & Company, entailing a loss of close to $400,000.

The fire started early Wednesday morning and was still smoldering yesterday, destroyed the big planing mill, lumber sheds together with several million feet of lumber and six box cars of the Atlantic Coast Line railway which already had been loaded.
